THE SCIENTISTS ON SEVERAL EXCUR-SIONS

SOME OF THEM GO TO THE FISHING BANKS AND DREDGE FOR SPECIMENS OF

DEEP-SEA LIFE. The sessions of the scientists holding their annual meeting of the American Association, in Brooklyn, were suspended yesterday, so far as reading of papers was concerned. Various excursions absorbed interest of nearly 1,000 persons connected with the Association for the Advancement of Science and its affiliated societies. The trips were arranged by the Local Committee of the association, composed of prominent Brooklyn people, many of whom ac

There were four excursions, About 600 persons went by iron steamboat to Cold Spring Harbor, and isited the Fish Commission Station and the Biological Laboratory. A party of 300 went by the Mary Patten to Long Branch, where they were the guests of Mrs. Esther Hermann. The members and friends of the American Chemical Societ took the steamer Blackbird and went to Bayonne and Newark. The smallest party, but the one most deeply in-terested in scientific research, went on the Fish Commission steamboat Fishhawk to the Cholera or Fishing Banks, and dredged the bottom of the sea, securing many interesting specimens.

The party which went on the Fishhawk was in charge of Dr. Joseph H. Hunt and Ernest Ingersoll. They crossed South and Staten Island ferries. and boarded the steamer at the Light House Station at Tompkinsville. United States Fish Commis-sioner Marshall MacDonald welcomed them to the vessel, which was under command of Captain Rob-ert Pratt. In the party were Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Hunt, of Brooklyn; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Earnard, of New-York; James Hamblett, of Brooklyn; A. W. Butler, of Brookville, Ind.; A. E. Murphy, of New-York; Edward L. Rice, of Middletown, Conn.; O. D. Clark, of the Boys' High School, Brooklyn; F. A. Sirprive, of Jamaica, L. I.; Hugo Mulertt, of boklyn, and Victor H. Lowe, of Jamaica, L. I. The start was made from Tompkinsville shortly after 10 a. m., and the Cholera Banks were reached about 1:30 p. m. The dredging for experimental purposes was the first ever done in that region. At a point about ten miles south of Rockaway and twelve miles southeast of Sandy Hook the dredge was put out. The contents of the dredge showed that the place is an expellent one for fishing. that the place is an excellent one for fishing, as is rell known, because of the great variety of sea food found there. The mode of taking the temperature, soundings and the use of the trawl dredge were shown as in the actual work done by the Fish Commission. The record of one of the experiments with the dredge showed that it was put out at 3.25 p. m. at flood tide in thirteen and a half fathoms of water. The bottom was sand and fine gravel. The temperature of the air was 75 degrees, of the water at the surface 71 degrees, and at the bottom 65½ degrees. The density was 19.23. The contents of the dredge included ten species of shellish, seven species of crabs, including hermit crabs, six species of fishes, starfish, sanddolars, sea urchins and sea anemones. In all forty-five or fifty species of sea life were brought up. The dredge at one point brought up ballast which some vessel had thrown overboard.

One of the interesting things brought up were eggs of the skate and the young fish developing from the embryo.

The party returned early in the evening and reported a thoroughly successful expedition. The Fishhawk, which the Government placed at the disposal of the association, will make another trip this week, and will go to the Gulf Stream for deep sea dredging. The record of one of the experiments

There was a large party on the iron steamboat Cygnus, which left the Bridge wharf at 9:30 for Laure.ton Grove, at Cold Spring Harbor. Professor F. W. Hooper was in charge. The party divided into three sertions at Cold Spring Harbor. About fifty geologists took boats to Great Neck, Long fifty geologists took boats to Great Neck, Long fisland, to study the folded clay beds of the tertiary age, which are unusually fine there Among the geologists present were Professors Hitchcock, of Dartmouth College; Professor Rice, of Weseyan University: Professor Halock, of Columbia College; Professor F. W. Hooper, of the Brooklyn Institute: Professor Wooman, of Philadelphia; John Pierson, of Louisvelle, Ky., and George F. Kunz, of New-York.

The second party took steam and naphtha launches and proceeded to the Biological Laboratory and New-York Fishery Station. About 100 professors and teachers of biology with their friends visited the laboratory and were much peased with the excellent advantages which it affords. Frederlick Mather, in charge of the Fish Hatcheries received the members of the party and explained the methods of fish culture.

A third party of about fifty took a tramp through the forest and along the shore to study the botany of the region. The rest remained either on the Cygnus or in the grove near by. The Ladies' Reception Committee was represented by Mrs. St. Cair McKelway, Mrs. Darwin R. James, Mrs. William H. Lyon, Mrs. Croxson, Mrs. A. J. Perry and Mrs. M. B. Coulston, Dr. E. R. Squibb and his friend, Dr. Koechler, of Berlin, were increased members of the party. Dr. Oliver R. Jones, of New-York, who owns the large clay beds at Co.4 Spring, met the party with a steam aumenh and took them to various points of geological interest along the Those who went to Long Branch were in charge

The party reached Brooklyn at 6:30 o'clock. Those who went to Long Branch were in charge of W. H. Hale. The steamboat Aurora transferred those from Brooklyn to the Mary Patten at the Battery. Upon the arrival of the boat at Pleasure Bay stages took the party to the grounds of Mrs. Eather Hermann, where luncheon was served. The members of the party were her guests, and she presented to each a handsome silver badge in the form of a shell, with the word "Prokress" and the lamp of learning upon it. In the party were Dr. Daniel G. Brinton, president of the association, Dr. and Mrs. W. M. Hutchinson, Miss Hutchinson, Dr. and Mrs. W. M. Hutchinson, Miss Hutchinson, Dr. and Dough Mrs. A. Doughass, J. B. Hyde, John A. Dounn, Assemblyman and Mrs. Stillman F. Kneeland, Harrison G. Dyar, Nicholas Hallock, William H. Hale, Professor George Bruce Haistead and Professor James T. B. Ives.

The excursion of members of the Chemical Society was made to Bayonne, where the Works of the Standard Oil Company were visited. The boat then went to Newark, where the Lister Agricultural Chemical Works, the Feigenspan Brewery and the Baibach Smelling Works, all of Newark, were inspected.

To-day the members of the association are in-

Balbach Smelling Roles as spected.

To-day the members of the association are invited to attend services at il a. m. in Plymouth Church, where Professor Rossiter W. Raymond will preach upon "The Relation of Science and Religion." The reading of papers before the sections will be resumed to-morrow morning, and an excursion about the harbor will be made in the afternoon.

And now the Lucania's officers are hoping for a new record. This sater ship of the present "championess" has a record of 5 days 12 hours and 47 minutes. captain Haines was not on board the Campania resterday, but Chief Officer Pierce was. Mr. Pierce was pleased, and he showed it.

"The Campania will make the trip in 5 days and 6 hours yet," he said between smiles. "A five days trip is not an impossibility, but the necessary speed can only be obtained by a greatly increased power, and this means a large expenditure of money. Every minute now counts in an ocean voyage. A gain of only ten minutes on a trip means that an additional three one-hundredths of a knot must be made every hour, and this is not an easy thing to accomplish. As yet the Campania has never been pushed."

The Campania cost over $3,000,000, and any vessel

While Park Policeman Daniel Whalen was pa-Tomb, a little after 2 o'clock yesterday morning he heard the sharp report of a pistol and saw a flash on a knoll a little north of the tomb. Lying outstretched on his back, on a bench, was a man apparently dying with a builet hole in his left revolver still smoking. The man was unconscious revolver still smoking. The man was unconscious and groaning. The builet had gone almost clean through his body and he died in a few minutes. When the body was searched nothing by which the dead man's identity could be fixed was found other than a scrap of paper on which was the address No. 57 West Twe-fith-st. From what could be learned at that house, which has furnished rooms, the suicide was evidently Carlyle Jurgensen, who had lived there for some time. One of the servants said she believed that Jurgensen was surely the suicide. She saw him leave the house about 8 o'clock on Friday night. As he was going out he remarked: "Katle, goodby; you'll never see me again."

8:30 o'clock, when the sidewalks were crowded with people, a Skye terrier belonging to Mrs. Theiss, of No. 733 Third-ave., ran to the middle of the street and began snapping and barking. The dog ex-"Mad dog!" was set up. The dog crossed the street three or four times with an ever-increasing howiing mob after him. Women shrieked and children siles were hurled at the animal, but he dodged them all. A stout German tried to jump on him with both feet and fell down on the waik instead, while several small boys rolled over him. The yelping Skye was finally cornered, and by rare good fortune (for him) he was near the doorway of his misress. There was a crowd of six deep around the little fellow, kicking at him, when Mrs. Thelss, who is a German matron of ample proportions, sailed into it. She made things very interesting and finally grabbed his dogship by the nape of the neck and tucked him under her arm.

"Go vey mit all off you," said she, "dot dog is all righd!"

The autopsy on the body of Frederick Bergman. who was shot and instantly killed at the cabin of his cather-in-law. Thomas Burke, at South Beach, was held yesterday by Dr. Thompson. The autopsy showed that the charge of shot entered Bergman's body in a horizontal line, and some of the arge buckshot had penetrated the lungs, liver and kidneys. The intestines were torn and broken where the charge had torn through the body. The wad and some of the shot had lodged in the heavy muscles about the spine, and the spine was injured. In passing through Bergman's clothing, the charge had gone through a note book, which the young man carried in his pocket. The autopsy, the police say, tends to support their theory that Bergman was shot while the gun was in the hands of Burke and not while it was set as a trap as Burke alleges. The course would have been downward, it is said, had the gun been handled as it usually was, and it would have been upward, had it been on the camp stool as
